

TREND AND TRADITION

stelton
Since 1960

1960-2013

The history of Stelton

In 1960 Niels Stellan Høm and Carton Madelaire founded a trading company called Stelton. They started out with sports shoes and furniture, but soon they opened their minds towards stainless steel tableware.

After a few years, a new managing director, Peter Holmblad, provided the Stelton brand with a whole new graphic identity. Furthermore he asked his stepfather, Arne Jacobsen, to design a new series of tableware for Stelton. In 1967 this resulted in the launch of Cylinda-Line.

In 1977 Erik Magnussen, who had joined Stelton, designed his famous, iconic vacuum jug – now called EM77. For nearly 30 years, Peter Holmblad and Erik Magnussen developed Stelton, manufacturing danish design.

In 2004 Peter Holmblad sold the company to Michael Ring. Michael Ring trimmed the assortment and invited new designers to furnish innovative product ideas to meet current consumer needs. New design families were added to appeal to a broader range of consumer segments.

Today Stelton has 6 different design families cylinda-line by Arne Jacobsen from 1967 is the heritage, on which the classic family is build. The design is based on the cylindrical shape and always made of stainless steel – sometimes added the iconic, well known handle.

DESIGN FAMILIES

classic is based on the cylindrical shape that Stelton is well known for. Stelton classic has a characteristic, Scandinavian and often iconic design inspired by Arne Jacobsen's cylinda-line from 1967.

danish modern 2.0 is vintage minimalism with a modern twist. It is clean, pure lines with focus on materials and proportions – often added innovative functions. It is 2.0 because it is danish modern interpreted by Stelton.

explore is Scandinavian design with a clear Stelton expression. However, with a softer design language compared to classic. Explore is innovative design with an architectural touch.

i:cons is a design family of personal accessories with a stylish Scandinavian expression. Stelton i:cons are innovative accessories that enrich life on the go.

norstaal is design made of steel for the kitchen and the dinner table. Cutlery, serving tools and kitchen knives are united in this design family.

The classic family expands with: nordic coast colours on the EM77 jugs and Circle mugs, new tealight holders in the Frost series and the brand new Stella series for décoration of your home.

In the danish modern 2.0 family we introduce Emma, a brand new series that is all about tea and coffee. Reflection is a new tray for serving or simply décoration for your home. Be on trend with Papilio Uno - now in a hot metal copper version.

To Go 2.0 in i:cons introduces two new colours: One to match Stelton's new nordic coast colours and one for everyone who fancies retro colours.

Emma is the new series for tea and coffee. Both vacuum jugs have steel inserts to keep tea and coffee hot. An innovative smart-filter makes the teabrewing very simple. Twist and turn the tea-filter to stop the brewing proces. An easy click to open function on the coffee jug handles the pouring easily. Mugs and milk jug are made of double walled porcelain to keep your drink warm and hands cool. Enjoy the latest member of our danish modern 2.0 family. Emma is refined retro with strong lines and focus on form and functionality.

Reflection is another newcomer to the danish modern 2.0 family. A floating dish on an elegant oak pillar provides extravagant serving or use the tray as stylish décor for your home. Combine Reflection and the Kontra vacuum jug when serving fruit or cake at the coffee table.

Erik Magnussen designed the award winning, iconic vacuum jug in 1977 – now named EM77. The jug has been dressed in a wealth of colours. This season in Hot Metals; Copper, Brass and Mirror. We asked Erik about his approach to the design process.

Where does your inspiration derive from?

My inspiration comes from jazz music and films, from auto mechanics, doctors, great craftsmen and sailors, from the nature, from new techniques and materials. My surroundings in general inspire me, apart from literature because I am dyslexic.

What is great design in your opinion?

Great designs emerge when the senses are used intensively. Some products have a particular appeal – others none at all. In between lies the use of our senses. It is important not to let go before function, innovation, production technology, price, environmental considerations and aesthetics are balanced.

Why do you think the EM77 turned into a classic?

I believe there are several reasons. Firstly, it has a bird like expression, which teases the senses and makes it easy recognizable. Secondly, it has a special feature, the automatic open/close function. Additionally, the jugs' minimalistic and graphic expression is an attention grabber. Last but not least, its simple construction makes it possible to keep it at an affordable price.

What makes Nordic design unique?

Nordic design takes its starting point in the craftsmanship. In comparison; Italian design for instance is often more 'thought' where as Nordic design is made in the workshop. This ensures that Nordic design very often is both functional and practical.

Team Stelton, Norway

Daily leader

Andrés Andersen: I use the ovenproof dishes from RIG-TIG all the time for vegetables like root crops and the children's favourite 'daddy's lasagne'. Particularly, the detail with the RIG-TIG by Stelton logo in the bottom is super cool.

Key Account Manager

Elizabeth Larsen Sethi: The Zig-Zag trivets are great. They exemplify the originality that the designers of the brand RIG-TIG by Stelton creates when designing for this range.

Key Account Manager

Bente Sørum: The new Emma series is stylish and exclusive however at an affordable price. The tea vacuum jug is perfect for my green tea. With the smart-filter open/close function I can enjoy the tea on the porch without my tea going bitter.

B2B Manager

Roar Velten Loraas: A favourite of mine is the vacuum jug from 1977 by Erik Magnussen. It is timeless design in fashionable colours.

Student assistant

Vilde Fjeldstad: Emma coffee vacuum jug is my jug. The combination of steel and wood is AMAZING. The coffee will work wonders and keep me awake when studying for my exams.
